Loader Training BC

Loader Training BC - Loader Training Courses - Be Safe At all times - Anybody who wants to operate a forklift should take a Loader Training course to become a certified forklift truck operator. There are several ways to acquire forklift training. Programs are offered through workforce training agencies, company forklift certification programs, and approved on line and video programs. The cost can be minimal (or free) when provided by occupational safety officers on job sites or through employment agencies.

Lift truck operators must be 18 years of age or over, in most nations. Local industry bodies approve Loader Training courses and require operators to acquire a certificate before operating this kind of heavy machines. A certificate is valid for four years in most areas. Companies which hire employees to drive forklift trucks can face serious liability problems if operators fail to keep this certificate up to date.

The untrained forklift operator is more at risk to cause injuries or damages because of improper operation of the lift truck. Therefore, safety training programs would consist of correct methods for loading and driving. Employees must pass a written test in order to be certified. A company would usually designate a supervisor in order to provide hands-on training to new workers. A licensed supervisor must have extensive training in forklift safety and be licensed as a trainer.
